PREFACE

For nearly two hundred years "Cruden's Concordance" has been a household word wherever the English language is spoken and the English Bible read.

Its author, Alexander Cruden, was born in 1701 at Aberdeen, where he was educated at the grammar school and Marischal College. He was intended for the Presbyterian ministry, but ill-health, which for a time affected his mind, led him to take up teaching at the age of twenty-one. After some years spent in private tutorships, he came to London, where in 1732 he opened a bookseller's shop in the Royal Exchange and was appointed bookseller to Queen Caroline. He died at Camden Place, Islington, in 1770, and was buried in Southwark in a burial-ground now said to be included in the premises of a well-known brewery. A bursary provided by him and bearing his name is among the prizes of Aberdeen University.

The first edition of Cruden's Concordance was published in 1737. It won for him special honors at the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge. Two further editions of the Concordance appeared in Cruden's lifetime in 1761 and 1769 respectively. Since that time numerous editions have been published with some claim to revision but have varied slightly from the original text and repeated many inaccuracies which appeared in the early editions.

The present edition may justly claim to be the most accurate and complete Cruden's Concordance to the Old and New Testaments. It contains upwards of 220,000 references. Every quotation and reference in this new Concordance has received careful scrutiny. The result is that many inaccuracies which appeared in the original editions and others which have from time to time crept in have now been corrected. The explanatory notes, while mainly in the language of Cruden, have embodied the latest Scriptural interpretations and the results of the most recent discoveries of archeology. The work has the advantage of being edited on both sides of the Atlantic and the fruits of the work of the American revisers of the Bible will be especially found in the explanatory notes.

The text quoted throughout is that of the Authorised Version of 1611, known in America as the "King James's Version," and its spelling and punctuation have generally been followed. Where the Revised Version of 1881 has altered the sense or made the meaning clearer, this is indicated by an asterisk [*]. Where such alteration has been made by the American Revision, this is indicated by a dagger [†].

The grouping of Proper Names and the general Concordance under one Alphabetical arrangement will greatly facilitate the use of the volume. In the Appendix will be found a list of Proper Names seldom mentioned in Scripture and not included in the body of the Concordance. Every endeavour has been made, in the necessarily shortened quotations, to include the most essential word, and to preserve the true meaning of the text.

The quotation occupies the first position in the column, followed by the main reference, and then by reference to other passages where the principal word is used. The principal word quoted is indicated by its initial letter in italics. A colon between the figures (1:6) divides chapter and verse; a semicolon (Isa 9:6; John 3:16, 17) divides the main reference from succeeding references; while a comma divides verses in the same chapter.

Thus, under the heading Aaron:

A. shall bear their.	Ex 28:12; 29:30
A. shall burn sweet incense.	30:7
A. lighteth the lamps at even.	8
A. shall make an atonement once.	10

In the first line there are two passages quoted with chapter and verse; in the second line one chapter and verse, while the third and fourth lines have the verse only, being a verse of chapter 30 quoted in the preceding lines.

Every modern mechanical facility was employed in the preparation of this edition. The type which was cast expressly for the work combines clearness with compactness. The black face type is restful to the eye. The special type arrangement is an aid to ready reference. Therefore in fulness of contents, clearness of type and logical arrangement, this edition is superior to any other edition of Cruden's Concordance previously published and is especially adapted for school and general use.

And now this new edition is sent forth with the prayer that it may be blessed to the men and women of to-day as it has been blessed in the past, in the fuller, clearer understanding of the Holy Scriptures and the enrichment thereby of Christian character and service.

(Camels were the usual riding animals in the East, as they were stronger than horses, and had much more endurance. As so much of the Bible world was either desert, or dry at certain seasons of the year, the peculiar adaptation of the camel to deserts was of unusual importance. Very frequently a man's wealth was estimated in camels. They were bred for work or for swift riding, and their hair was used for clothing)

captivity
(The servitudes spoken of in Judges, and those under the Greeks and the Romans, are sometimes spoken of as Captivities. More exactly, however, the word is used of the carrying away of the people of Israel and of Judah into Babylonia and Assyria, when the kingdom of Israel was finally destroyed, and the kingdom of Judah lost its independence, Jerusalem and the Temple being destroyed.

The word is also frequently used in the Bible in its ordinary sense of bondage or servitude without reference to any historical event)

(The words child, children are frequently used for any descendant or descendants however remote, as the children of Israel. Such expressions as children of light, children of darkness, mean those who follow the light, or try to hide in the darkness. "Children of God" in the Old Testament is used sometimes for angels, sometimes for good men. In the New Testament the term is more often used of those who have believed and accepted Christ)

Christ

The anointed one. The Greek name Christos from the word anointed. The Hebrew word was Messiah. The expected king and deliverer of the Jews, who expected a strong and glorious earthly king, to deliver them from oppressors and form again a great independent kingdom of the Jews. He was to be a descendant of David, and bring the whole world under his sway.

There are many passages in the Old Testament which refer to this great deliverer under various names. Among these references are verses in Ps 22, 45, 55; Isa 9, 11, 53; Dan 2, 9; etc.

The Jews were looking for this deliverer down the ages from the time of the Captivity, and more definitely at about the time of the coming of Jesus. When he was announced as being the Christ, or the Messiah, the rulers among the Jews refused to accept him largely because he and the method of his coming were so utterly different from their ideas of what the Messiah was to be. There are, however, very many verses in the Old Testament which were believed by the Jews themselves to refer to the Messiah and his coming which speak of his suffering and lowliness, etc. But their minds were shut against such ideas as these.

In modern usage the name is used as a synonym for Jesus, or added to that name to refer to Jesus, the Christ of the Jews, and the Saviour of mankind.

In addition to the common meaning this word is used frequently of, [1] A great number, Heb 12:1. [2] A fog, or mist, Hos 6:4. [3] The sky, Ps 36:5; 68:34; Pr 8:28.

(At the Exodus God gave the Israelites a pillar of cloud to direct them in their march. This attended them through the wilderness. It was clear and bright during the night, in order to give them light when it grew dark; and in the day time it was thick and gloomy, the better to defend them from the excessive heats of the Arabian deserts. It also gave the signal for marching and for halting) covenant

The most common uses of the word in the Bible are for the covenant between God and his people. [1] The covenant between God and man, of continued life and favour on condition of obedience, Gen 2:16. [2] That between God and Noah, that there should not be another flood, Gen 9:12-16. [3] With Abraham and his descendants as individuals and as a nation, frequently mentioned throughout the history. This was the Old Covenant, the Old Dispensation. The New Covenant is the spiritual covenant of God in Christ with his followers, frequently mentioned in the New Testament.

Jesse begat D. Ruth 4:22; Mat 1:6
Luke 3:31
Spirit of Lord came upon D.
1 Sam 16:13
send me D. thy son. 19
D. came to Saul. 21
D. played. 23; 18:10; 19:9
D. was youngest. 17:14
D. returned from Saul. 15
D. heard the words of Goliath. 23
Eliab's anger kindled against D. 28
Saul armed D. 38
when Goliath saw D. 42
the Philistines cursed D. 43
D. prevailed over Philistine. 50
as D. returned from slaughter. 57 soul of Jonathan knit to D. 18:1
Jonathan and D. made a covenant. 3
D. went out whithersoever Saul. 5
D. hath slain ten thousands. 7; 29:5
Saul eyed D. from that day. 18:9
D. behaved himself wisely in all. 14 all Israel and Judah loved D. 16 on this manner spake D. 24 knew the Lord was with D. 28 and Saul became D.'s enemy. 29 spake to his servants to kill D. 19:1 against innocent blood to slay D.? 5 sought to smite D. but D. 10, 18
D. is at Naioth. 19
where are Samuel and D.? 22
D. asked leave of me to. 20:6, 28 and Jonathan caused D. to. 17
D. hid himself. 24
D.'s place was empty. 25, 27 for he was grieved for D. 34 wept one with another till D. 41 afraid at the meeting of D. 21:1
D. arose, and fled to Achish. 10 is not this D. the king ? 11; 29:3
D. departed and escaped to. 22:1
and D. went thence to Mizpeh. 3 D. departed and came into forest. 5 who is so faithful as D.? 14 their hand also is with D. 17
D. inquired of the Lord. 23:2, 4
30:8; 2 Sam 2:1; 3:19, 22; 21:1
D. and his men went to. 1 Sam 23:5
D. knew that Saul practised. 9
D. was in the wilderness of Ziph. 15
D. and his men were in. 24
Saul returned from pursuing D. 28
D. is in wilderness of En-gedi. 24:1
D.'s heart smote him. 5
D. stayed his servants. 7
this thy voice, my son D.? 16; 26:17
D. sware unto Saul. 24:22
D. went to Paran. 25:1
D. sent out ten young men. 5
do God to the enemies of D. 22 doth not D. hide himself in ? 26:1
and D. beheld the place where. 5
D. took the spear and the cruse. 12
Saul knew D.'s voice. 17 return, my son D. 21
D. said, I shall perish by the. 27:1
D. was fled to Gath. 4
D. invaded Geshurites. 8
so did D. and so will be. 11
it to thy neighbour, to D. 28:17 is not this D.? 29:3

then Achish called D. 1 Sam 29:6
when D. and his men were. 30:1
and D.'s two wives were taken. 5
D. pursued. 10
D. smote them from the twilight. 17
D. recovered all. 18, 19
D. took the flocks. 20
D. took hold on clothes. 2 Sam 1:11
D. called one of the young men. 15
D. lamented over Saul. 17
D. sent messengers to men. 2:5
house of Judah followed D. 10 house of D. waxed stronger. 3:1
unto D. were sons born in Hebron. 2 except as Lord hath sworn to D. 9 ye sought for D. in times past. 17
D. said, I and my kingdom are. 28 came all tribes of Israel to D. 5:1
thinking, D. cannot come in. 6
D. took the strong-hold of Zion. 7
D. grew great. 10
D. perceived the Lord had. 12
D. heard of it, and went down. 17
D. burnt their images. 21
D. went to bring up the ark. 6:2
D. all Israel played before the. 5 and D. was afraid of the Lord. 9 D. danced. 14
so D. brought up the ark. 15
what can D. say more to thee ?
7:20; 1 Chr 17:18
D. smote the Philistines. 2 Sam 8:1
D. smote Hadadezer. 3
Lord preserved D. 6, 14
D. took shields of gold. 7; 1 Chr 18:7
D. gat him a name. 2 Sam 8:13
D. reigned over. 15; 1 Chr 18:14
D. reigned; executed. 2 Sam 8:15
D. sent to comfort. 10:2; 1 Chr 19:2
thinkest thou D. doth honour thy ?
2 Sam 10:3; 1 Chr 19:3
D. slew men of 700. 2 Sam 10:18
D. sent and enquired after. 11:3
D. sent for Uriah. 6
D. wrote a letter to Joab. 14
the thing D. had done displeased. 27
D.'s anger was kindled. 12:5
D. said, I have sinned against. 13
D. besought God for child, D. 16
D. perceived child was dead. 19 and D. comforted Bath-sheba. 24
D. fought against Rabbah and. 29
king's crown was set on D. 30
D. sent to Tamar. 13:7
tidings came to D. 30
D. went up by the ascent of. 15:30
Shimei cast stones at D. 16:6
said unto him, curse D. 10
I will arise and pursue after D. 17:1
send quickly and tell D. 16
then D. arose. 22
D. was come to Mahanaim. 27
honey for D. 29
D. numbered the people that. 18:1
D. sat between the two gates. 24
we have also more right in D. 19:43 we have no part in D. 20:1
and D. came to his house. 3
he that is for D. let him go. 11

day

The word day is used of [1] one period of the earth's revolution, or twenty-four hours, Gen 7:24; Job 3:6. This period the Hebrews reckoned as beginning at sunset, Lev 23:32. [2] The period between dawn and dark, variable in different latitudes and at different seasons, Gen 8:22, Ps 19:2; 2 Pet 1:19. [3] Any period of action or state of being, without definite reference to time, Job 19:25; Zech 4:10; Hos 1:11; Eccl. 7:14; Ezek 30:9. In the day that usually has merely the meaning of when, and is sometimes so translated, 1 Ki 2:8; Isa 30:26. "In thy days" means "in thy lifetime," 1 Ki 11:12.

This was formerly thought to fall like a light rain during the night, and the references to it in the Bible are usually worded according to this idea, as are many of our customary phrases with reference to it as the falling of the dew. In warm countries, and in places where it rains but seldom, the night-dews supply in some sort the want of rain. And therefore the bestowing of it is a blessing from God, Deut 33:13; and the withholding of it a curse, 2 Sam 1:21.

The ancient Hebrews, who were very little versed in the study of natural philosophy, and not much accustomed to consult physicians when they were sick, imputed their diseases generally to evil spirits, or to the hand of God, generally in punishment for some sin; and king Asa is blamed for placing his confidence in physicians, when he had a very painful fit of the gout in his feet, instead of to God, 2 Chr. 16:12.

In the New Testament, the cause of many diseases is attributed to the devil, Luke 13:16. And the various forms of insanity and allied troubles were spoken of as being possessed of a devil. There seems to have been also something beyond ordinary insanity included among these, but there is no means of telling either what it was, or what proportion of the cases might be considered as coming under it.

The diseases of Egypt, from which God promised to defend his people, Ex 15:26; and which he threatens, in case of their disobedience, to inflict upon them, Deut 28:60; are either the plagues with which God afflicted Egypt before the departure of the Israelites, or the diseases which were most common in the country, such as blindness, ulcers in the legs, consumptions, and the leprosy, called Elephantiasis, which was peculiar to this country (Pliny).

A foreseeing or foretelling of future events or discovery of hidden knowledge. In eastern nations, and especially in Bible times, this was done by interpreting dreams or other signs, or by some peculiarities in the sacrifices, whether offered to God or to an idol. There were several sorts of divinations, namely, by water, fire, earth, air; by the flight of birds, and their singing; by lots, by dreams, by the staff, or wand, by the entrails of victims, and by cups. The custom has been universal in all ages and all nations, civilized or savage. In the Bible the word is used of false systems of ascertaining the Divine will.

divorce

The legal dissolution of marriage. Moses tolerated divorces, Deut 24:1-4.

The school of Shammah, who lived a little before our Saviour, taught, that a man could not lawfully be divorced from his wife, unless he had found her guilty of some action which was really infamous, and contrary to the rules of virtue. But the school of Hillel, who was Shammah's disciple, taught, on the contrary, that the least reasons were sufficient to authorize a man to put away his wife; for example, if she did not cook his food well, or if he found any woman whom he liked better.

The Pharisees attempted to trap our Lord into some statement with which they could take issue, but he declined to interpret Moses' words, though he declared that he regarded all lesser causes than fornication as standing on too weak ground.

[1] Any one of numerous birds of the pigeon family, although commonly the name is applied to the smaller varieties. This bird is very common in Palestine. It was considered clean and was used in sacrifices. Because of this they were sold in the temple courts, Lev 12:6, 8; Luke 2:24; Mark 11:15. [2] The dove is the symbol of gentleness and innocence, Mat 10:16. It is defenceless, faithful to its mate and home-loving. This last is the secret of the success of the training of carrier-pigeons. [3] The dove is used as a symbol of the Holy Spirit, Mat 3:16.

The expression dove's dung, in 2 Ki 6:25, may mean what it apparently does ; or it may mean a common plant which had some nutritive quality, and which rose to famine prices at the siege of Jerusalem.

[1] The Hebrew word tan, translated in Authorized Version dragon, is always used in the plural, and is applied to some creatures inhabiting the desert. It probably refers to wild beasts and not to any of the serpent family to which a dragon belongs. The Revised Version translates it in every case by the word jackals. [2] The Hebrew word tannin seems to refer to any great monster of land or sea, usually some kind of serpent or reptile, but not invariably. In the New Testament it is found only in the Revelation, applied metaphorically to Satan, Rev 12:3, etc. Either word is frequently used metaphorically.

The Eastern people, and in particular the Jews, had a very great regard for dreams; they observed them, and applied to those who professed to explain them. We see the antiquity of this custom among the Egyptians, in the history of Pharaoh's butler and baker, and in Pharaoh himself, Gen 40:5, 8; 41:15. Nebuchadnezzar is an instance of the same among the Chaldeans, Dan 2:1, 2, 3, etc.

As the belief in dreams was generally connected with consultation of idol-priests, or those pretending to deal in magic, the Israelites were warned against dealing with these. But God revealed his will frequently in dreams, and there were those who could explain them, Gen 20:3; 28:12; 37:4; Num 12:6; Deut 13:1.

At least eight distinct kinds of eagles and vultures have been observed in Palestine. The Hebrew word nesher is used almost entirely in the Bible for eagle, and it is impossible to determine exactly which is intended. Most probably it is the general term for any eagle, as it merely means a tearer with the beak.

Most frequently in the Bible the reference is to some characteristic of the eagle, and is made as a vivid expression of some quality in that which is compared to it. Among these are its swiftness of flight, Deut 28:49; Pr 23:5; its strength of wing, Pr 30:19; Ezek 17:3; its eating of carrion, Mat 24:28 (this is true only of the vultures); the building of its nest high on the mountain cliff, Jer 49:16; the baldness of one variety, Mi 1:16. There is also reference to the ancient belief that at the end of a certain period the eagle moults and by some unknown means renews its youth, Ps 103:5; probably derived from the extreme length of the eagle's vigorous life. The custom of carrying its young from the inaccessible cliffs on its broad wings is also made a symbol for the deliverance of the Israelites, Ex 19:4.

(The use of the word ear in the Bible is used most often as attention, hearing, etc., rather than of the actual physical ear. To have the ears heavy is to pay no attention; to open the ear is to pay attention; uncircumcised ears are those which are deaf to the word of God. To tell something in the ear, is to speak in secret)

earthquake
The scripture speaks of several earthquakes. One of the most remarkable occurred in the twenty-seventh year of Uzziah, king of Judah, Zech 14:5.

Another very memorable earthquake, was that at the time of our Saviour's crucifixion, Mat 27:51.

Great alterations and changes are expressed in scripture by a shaking of the earth, Heb 12:26. The delivering of the Israelites out of Egypt is called a moving, or shaking, of the earth, Ps 68:8. And an extraordinary and unexpected alteration in the state of affairs, civil or ecclesiastical, is represented by a great earthquake, Rev 6:12 and 16:18.

eat

The word is used in Scripture as we use it and its synonyms devour, consume, etc., both literally and figuratively. [1] To chew and swallow food, Gen 27:4. [2] To waste, consume, Eccl 5:11. [3] To oppress and destroy, Ps 14:4. [4] To have close union with Christ, symbolized by eating his flesh, John 6:56. [5] To read closely and attentively, as we say devour a book, Jer 15:16.

Eating with a person, in the East, is regarded almost as making a covenant of friendship which must not be broken; hence the scandal to the Jews of Jesus' eating with publicans and sinners, Mat 9:11; and the special sin of the betrayal by Judas, who had so often eaten with his Master.

The original government of the Hebrews was patriarchal, where the head of the family exercised the supreme rule over all of his descendants; his married sons doing the same with their children and other descendants, but still remaining subordinate to the supreme head. At the father's death his firstborn succeeded him in supreme headship. Naturally only men of mature age came into these positions, hence the designation elder. In that way Jacob was the head of all who went to Egypt with him, although his sons had families of their own. From this came [1] the great influence of the older people of the nation; [2] the division of the Israelites into tribes, with a head, chief, or prince over each as a whole; [3] the general use, in other nations as well as the Hebrews, of the term elder as an official title for those who as representatives of the people made all their decisions.

The earliest mention of elders as a political body is at the time of the Exodus. The seventy elders mentioned in Exodus and Numbers were a sort of governing body, a parliament, and the origin of the tribunal of seventy elders called the Sanhedrin or Council. There were also, after the founding of towns and cities, those who were put at the head of affairs who could not always derive their authority from their position in the tribe. These were also called elders, and they served as judges, to decide both civil and criminal causes.

The Sanhedrin was a supreme council, serving as a court of appeal, and having a general oversight over the inferior courts, and the general affairs of the nation. In the New Testament Church the elders or presbyters were the same as the bishops. It was an office derived from the Jewish usage of elders or rulers of synagogues.

Espousing, or betrothing, was done either by a formal contract in presence of witnesses; or without writing, by the man's giving a piece of silver to the bride before witnesses, and saying to her, Receive this piece of silver as a pledge that at such a time you shall become my spouse. After the marriage was thus contracted, the young people had the liberty of seeing each other, which was not allowed them before.

Originally an impotent man. Since those put in charge of the harems of Eastern monarchs were as a general rule of this class, the name became practically synonymous with chamberlain, with no indication of his condition, although probably its use in scripture was strict. Eunuchs were not allowed by Jewish law to enter the house of God, Deut 23:1; but they were present at the court, 1 Chr 28:1, marg. A eunuch was over the treasure of queen Candace of Ethiopia, and he was admitted to baptism, Acts 8:27, 38.

(Many believe that the words for ever or everlasting are not to be taken as synonymous with eternal, as being without end, but to be understood merely as meaning a very long time, to be left indeterminate. There seems to be a considerable amount of argument in favour of this in many cases, but it is not safe to conclude that it always should be so limited)

excommunicated
Excommunication is an ecclesiastical censure, whereby the person against whom it is pronounced is, for the time, cast out of the communion of the church.
The word is not used in the Bible, but the act is referred to in various ways, all easily recognizable. An example in the Jewish church is in John 9:34.

Faith is a dependence on the veracity of another; firm belief or trust in a person, thing, doctrine, or statement. And one is said to keep faith when he performs a promise made to another.

I. Historical faith is a belief in the truthfulness and accuracy of the Scriptural narrative and teachings, Jas 2:17, 24.

II. Saving faith is the acceptance by the intellect, affection, and will of God's favour extended to man through Christ. This faith produces a sincere obedience in the life and conversation. The firm foundation of faith is the essential supreme perfection of God; his unerring knowledge, immutable truth, infinite goodness, and almighty power.

By this faith, we are said to be justified, Rom 5:1. Not formally, as if it were our righteousness before God. It is called the faith through which we are saved, Eph 2:8. Faith is, as it were, a condition on our part whereby we come to be partakers of the blessings of the new covenant. It is a faith which worketh by love, Gal 5:6. It is not an idle, inactive grace, but shews itself by producing in us love to God and our neighbour.

Faith, in scripture, is also taken for the truth and faithfulness of God, Rom 3:3. Faith is also used for the doctrine of the gospel, which is the object of faith, Acts 24:24; Gal 1:23.

famine

Famines of more or less intensity frequently occurred in Palestine because of its dependence upon the rain, and in Egypt because of its dependence on a proper overflow of the Nile. Not until modern times has it been possible to store rain, or to regulate the flow of rivers, to any appreciable extent. Famine also came naturally when locusts or other insects destroyed the crops. The worst famine named in the Bible is that in Egypt and the surrounding countries in the time of Joseph, Gen 41.

Fasting has, in all ages, and among all nations, been much in use in times of mourning, sorrow, and afflictions. It is in some sort inspired by nature, which, in these circumstances, denies itself nourishment, and takes off the edge of hunger. There is no example of fasting, properly so called, to be seen before Moses; yet it is presumable that the patriarchs fasted, since we see that there were very great mournings among them, such as that of Abraham for Sarah, Gen 23:2; and that of Jacob for his son Joseph, Gen 37:34.

Moses enjoins no particular fast, excepting that upon the day of atonement, which was generally and strictly observed, Lev 23:27, 29. Since the time of Moses, examples of fasting have been very common among the Jews. Joshua and the elders of Israel remained prostrate before the ark from morning until evening, without eating, after the Israelites were defeated by the men of Ai, Josh 7:6. The eleven tribes which had taken arms against that of Benjamin, seeing they could not hold out against the inhabitants of Gibeah, fell down before the ark upon their faces, and so continued till the evening without eating, Judg 20:26. The Israelites perceiving themselves to be pressed by the Philistines, assembled before the Lord at Mizpeh, and fasted in his presence till the evening, 1 Sam 7:6. And David fasted while the first child he had by Bath-sheba, the wife of Uriah, was sick, 2 Sam 12:16.

Moses fasted forty days on mount Horeb, Ex 34:28. Elijah passed as many days without eating any thing, 1 Ki 19:8. And our Saviour fasted in the wilderness forty days and forty nights, Mat 4:2. These fasts were out of the common rules of nature.

It does not appear by our Saviour's own practice, or any commands that he gave to his disciples, that he instituted any particular fasts, or enjoined any to be kept out of pure devotion. It is however inferred from such statements as those in Luke 5:33–35, that he expected his followers would do so. The one condition he made was that it be sincere, Mat. 6:16.

The Mosaic law declared that to the Lord belongs all the fat of sacrificial animals, Lev 3:16, 17. Neither it nor the blood was eaten, but was burned as an offering to God, Ex 29:13, 22; Lev 4:8, 9. The ground of this law was that the fat was the richest part of the animal, and therefore belonged to God.

The word is used figuratively to mean the best part of a thing, or the richest productions, Neh 9:25; Ps 63:5; Isa 25:6; Rom 11:17.

feast

The Hebrews had a great number of feasts. The first, and most ancient of all, was the sabbath, or the seventh day of the week, instituted to preserve the memory of the world's creation, Gen 2:3.

The Passover celebration began on the evening of the fourteenth day of the first month in the ecclesiastical year, which was the seventh of the civil year. It lasted seven days, but the first and last days only were days of rest, Ex 12:14, etc.

The feast of Pentecost was celebrated on the fiftieth day after the Passover, or seven complete weeks after the consecration of the harvest season by the offering of the sheaf of the first ripe barley, Ex 23:16; Lev 23:15–22; Num 28.

The feast of Trumpets was celebrated on the first day of the civil year, in the month Tisri, answering to our September. This day was kept solemn; all manual labour was forbidden to be done upon it: and particular sacrifices were offered, Lev 23:24, 25.

The new moons, or first days of every month, were also celebrated as minor feasts.

The feast of Tabernacles, the feast of ingathering or real harvest festival, was kept for a week in the month Tisri, beginning five days after the day of atonement.

Besides these feasts mentioned by Moses, we find the feasts of lots, or Purim, which celebrated the escape of the Jews from Haman, the feast of Dedication, or rather of the restoration of the temple after it had been profaned by Antiochus Epiphanes, which is thought to be the feast mentioned in the gospel, John 10:22, was celebrated in the winter. Josephus says it was called the feast of lights.

The Day of Atonement, which was not a feast but a fast, was kept upon the tenth day of the month Tisri, or September. The Hebrews call it Kippur, that is, pardon or expiation, because it was instituted for the expiation of all the sins, irreverences, and pollutions of all the Israelites, from the high priest to the lowest of the people, committed by them throughout the whole year.

The fig tree and its fruit are well known; they were very common in Palestine, and there is mention often made of them in scripture. Our first parents clothed themselves with fig leaves, Gen 3:7. The prophet Isaiah gave orders to apply a lump of figs to Hezekiah's boil; and immediately after he was cured, 2 Ki 20:7.

The cursing of the fig tree, in Mat 21:19, is explained by the fact that the fruit of this tree appears before the leaves, and a tree so full of leaves indicated that ripe figs should be there, even though it was not yet the regular season. The meaning is then, that when one has the outward show of a good character, without its fruits, he is but a hypocrite, and of no value to the kingdom of God.

To dwell under one's own vine, or fig tree, represents in scripture a time of happiness and prosperity, safety and security, 1 Ki 4:25.
